

Illustration © 1997 by Neverne Covington

Helen Keller: Courage in the Dark

Helen Keller was afflicted with a sickness that left her without the ability to see or hear. Still, she learned how to be a great student. In fact, she even went to college and studied two languages: English and German!

Draw a line from the item on the right to the first sense that you would use to experience it.

smell

sight

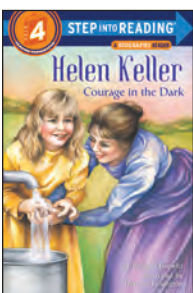

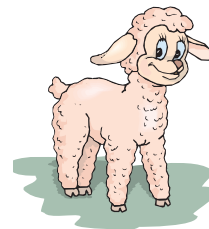

sound

touch

taste

Read the book
Helen Keller: Courage in the Dark.